This heavy load of coal westbound crossing the NZASM built three span Orlans River Bridge between Middelburg and Wilbank on the Eastern main line is no match for 44-027 and 44-016 on Saturday 22 July 2017. The bridge, built during 1893-1894, was not damaged during The Boer War but one of the piers has been encased in concrete, the other partially. The original steel girders were replaced in 1909/1910. Note the dressed stone masonry still visible on the abutments and piers, bearing testimony to the high standards of workmanship of the Scottish sub-contractor A Frowman who built the bridge, never envisaging the loads it would one day carry.
